

Do you like to write? Do you have a story, a group of poems, a novel you have started but never finished? Don't let your work, your ideas, sit in a drawer.

Join the Second Annual Green River Writer's Workshop:
"Turning Memory into Story"
July 18, 19, and 20 2009

This is your opportunity to spend time with other writers sharing your writing, gaining new writing skills, and learning more about the process of publishing

Under the expert guidance of authors/editors Gerald and Loretta Hausman you will take your writing to a new level. Gerry and Lorry are authors of more than 70 books of which 35 have won awards. Their work includes adult novels, history, poetry, and children's books. The Hausman's spirited and insightful presentation skills have made them popular workshop presenters. In addition to writing and presenting, they are editors and mentors for new and experienced writers.

If you are unable to attend the workshop itself, Gerry and Lorry have offered to make themselves available for individual manuscript readings and consultation by appointment. This is a rare opportunity to have supportive and constructive one-on-one insight into your work and the process of publishing.

Isn't it time to take that manuscript out of the drawer?
